T. C. ROBINSON, Editor.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

Subscription One Dollar a Year.

Sent at the Post-office at Greenville, S. C., as second-class matter.

William and Butler will meet in person Monday and the campaign will open in earnest.

Senator Alfred H. Colquett, of Virginia, died from a stroke of paralysis at his residence in Washington, D. C., on the 28th instant.

Silver and anti silver men look a veto of the Bland Bill. Bland quoted as saying that he expects the bill to be vetoed.

It was announced here Saturday at the Hon. John R. Harrison, present State senator from this county, has formally announced himself a candidate for the democratic nomination for secretary of state.—Greenville News.

Judge Simonton has decided that a R. & D. railroad must pay its taxes, and he orders the receivers to pay out of the funds in their hands the remainder of the taxes paid and the costs of the proceedings.

Recommended for Probate Judge.

The Greenville delegation to the legislature met Saturday in the office of Shuman & Dean, all of the members being present except Representative Perry. The delegation passed a unanimous resolution suggesting John C. Bailey, editor of the Greenville Democrat, for appointment to the probate judgeship of this county.—Greenville News.

SECO AGAIN IN POLITICS.

The Democrats of Columbia were not only surprised but indignant, when they learned that the negroes of that city had held a mass meeting and decided to take a hand in the city election. The Reformers of the city held the balance of the recent primary for the city council, and turned the tide in favor of the successful ticket, hence the effort of the colored people to take charge of the city government. The notorious June obit told a prominent gentleman of Columbia that the negroes wanted to defeat the Tillmanites and had come to him to help them. The citizens of Columbia have been very bitter, but their prejudices were not sufficiently strong to turn over the city government to a council to be named by the colored voters.

The conduct of the Columbia group shows the danger to which these men may lead the white people of this State, and should use all true men to use their influence to stop division and strife in the Democratic ranks. Haskell is dead, and the talk about a third party and the determination to crush it out of existence is all nonsense and it is only intended to divert the attention of the people from the real issues in the campaign.

"The speaking by the Reform candidates for Governor, in the contest for the nominations by the Reformers, will amount to nothing unless the Alliance principles are discussed fully and clearly. A mere rhetorical contest is not what is needed, as we cannot tell which is the best man by merely seeing him in dress parade. Our people want to know the why and wherefore of the positions taken by the candidates, even if they do say that they are on the Ocala platform. The day is past for mere declarations to be entirely satisfactory. Let them discuss the subjects fully."—The Cotton Plant.

The Journal can heartily endorse the above words, and has already insisted that the candidates should clearly define their positions on national, as well as state issues. It is not enough for them all to come up and praise the achievements of the Reform movement in State affairs; every Reformers should be proud of that, and should be willing not only to make all possible progress along that line, but should be thorough sympathy with the people in their demands for relief from the national government and should show his knowledge and ability to make his influence and position worth something in the contest. This is no time for sentiment and poetry, while the people are suffering from unjust and unequal laws.

for men, but measures must take precedence in the solution of the problems, confronting the people of this State.

The people are paying little attention to the wrangle among leaders, and the efforts of some to whip others into obedience, but will make their own selections at the proper time, and will not let their cause be harmed to promote the candidacy of any man.

Central Note.

March 19, 1894.

The first day of April, we will hold a town election and from the way the matter looks now it will be a very quiet election.

Mr. Gresham, the popular drummer, is resting a spell, he always comes to Central to rest.

Central is on a boom. A joint-stock company organized a Canning Factory here, and over half of the stock has been subscribed in less than two days. This will prove a blessing to some of our people in the way of giving them a market for their vegetables.

We have a new barber now, and he is quite an improvement on the old one.

It is whispered around that there will be a wedding in town this week, but you can hear anything (either reasonable or unreasonable) in Central, if you will just listen, but we don't mean any harm, just want to talk.

Mr. N. T. Martin is beautifying his place with fences and shrubbery.

If you want to see pretty girls come to Central—we have lots of them—or at least they come up street lots of them—or her—"do you know which I mean?"

Willie S. Gaines, who has been in Central America, running an engine for some time past, died there on the 1st of this month. This is a blow to his family, as he was a favorite, and so with all who know him.

Mr. Cauble and family will move back to Central shortly—we hope to remain with us this time.

Everybody in this vicinity has fine horses now. Let everybody come to Central and see the difference.

A Stab of an Assassin.

To a man who has kept cool and looked beneath the surface of events in this State for the past year, it is becoming plainer every day that the Alliance and the Reform Movement has no greater enemy, with more insidious power through his unscrupulousness than the editor of the Piedmont Headlight. He did the Order in Georgia irreparable damage through his erratic ways and was finally repudiated by the Alliancemen and left without a job, when he was brought over here as editor of the Register.

His character is such that principles have no weight with him and he bends all his energies serving the men who happen to be controlling him at a given time. His protestations of being an Allianceman are only from the teeth out and made entirely for effect, as he hasn't affiliated with the Order for years and has not paid any dues. A little watching of his course and actions will furnish ample proof of what we say.

There is hardly a prominent Reformer in the State, except the little clique who control him, who he has not maligned and misrepresented through his paper, and in other ways has done everything possible to sow the seeds of discord and dissension in our ranks. He accused Gov. Tillman of bribery in connection with the location of the Girl's Industrial Schools last Summer. His other attacks have been equally fallacious, but he seems not to be deterred by a lack of truth in his accusations.

We count the columns of abuse he has heaped on us lately as nothing and have paid but little attention to his assaults on our leaders, but we are forced to do some plain talking by his attack of the State Exchange, which is a tissue of falsehood, misrepresentation and innuendo from beginning to end.

ny" it is a malicious falsehood, as we know of our own knowledge, and is made for the sole purpose of creating distrust.

The readers of The Cotton Plant understands the working of the Exchange too well for it to be necessary for us to consume space by going into detail. That institution is recognized as one of the best managed in the country and has been of incalculable benefit to the farmers of the State, by keeping down prices. The trustee stockholders authorized the directors, who are conservative business men, to invest the fund in the Farmers' and Mechanics' bank of this city. The stock of this bank is owned principally by farmers and besides that the Exchange has five of the nine directors, making the Exchange investment as safe as it is possible to make it. That bank is now loaning nearly all its funds to Alliancemen and is helping its own people as much as it can. Such insinuations as made are of the greatest injury to the Order and can only come from a man who has no sympathy with its purpose.

Of course, the animus of the attack is perfectly plain to everyone. Hon. Stanyarne Wilson is a candidate for Congress, and one of the principal owners of the Headlight. Col. Duncan has also been mentioned for that place, and hence Gantt wished to do everything he can to injure Col. Duncan, thinking it will help his man. He doesn't care a particle about ruining the Exchange if he can elect his man in the meantime.

We shall not say more. We will only warn the Alliancemen who read his paper, that they are nursing a frozen adder, that will use his poisonous fangs on them whenever it suits his purpose to do so.—Cotton Plant.

Many Big Speeches.

All the Candidates for Governor and Congress Show Up at Spartanburg—Shell and McLauren Talk and the Latter Pays His Respects to Editor Gantt.

SPECIAL to The Daily News.

SPARTANBURG, March 24.—Mr. Ellerbe, J. G. Evans, W. D. Evans and Dr. Pope, candidates for governor and Duncan, Farley and Stanyarne Wilson, candidates for congress from the 4th district, spoke here today. Shell and McLauren were on hand. After the other speakers had said their say McLauren was called on and said he wished to defend his record as a reformer. When asked the question as he said he would support Tillman, if he stood on a reform platform.

He paid his respects to Editor Gantt in the most approved style on account of some recent remark of the Piedmont Headlight.

Captain Shell followed by giving an account of his doing in congress and his connection with the reform movement.

It was at Lincoln, Ill., that a religious revival was in progress, and the evangelist, after a powerful sermon on the Christian duty of debt paying, called upon all the members of the congregation who paid their debts to stand. The congregation rose almost to a man. After they were seated, the evangelist invited those who did not pay their debts to stand. A solitary forlorn looking individual rose to his feet, and explained that while he found himself in the category very unwillingly, he could not help himself, as he was the editor and proprietor of the local paper, and could not pay up, as the congregation owed him their subscription. Such a flood of money as poured into that office the next morning had never been known in the history of the paper.

A serious shooting occurred in Comer Township, Anderson County, on Saturday, the 18th instant, Miss Sallie Anderson was met in the public road by Woodrow Campbell in a drunken condition and asked to see her home. Seeing his condition she promptly refused, whereupon he drew a pistol and fired at her three times, one of the balls taking effect in the back of the thigh and ranging through toward the groin. Dr. Chinkles was called and attended her injuries. She is dangerously hurt.

Even in great cities careful people keep early hours. "We had a fine sunrise this morning," said one New Yorker to another. "Did you see it?" "Sunrise!" said the second man, "why, I'm always in bed before sunrise."

How an Editor Proposed.

"Dear Miss Mildred," wrote the young editor, "I find it impossible to tell you by words of mouth what I have been longing for months to say. My tongue refuses to do the bidding of my will when I am in your presence. I am under the necessity, therefore, of writing to tell you how inexpressibly dear to me you have become and to ask if you will consent to be my wife. In replying please be brief, omit the discussion of unimportant topics, and write only on one side of the sheet."—Chicago Tribune.

Agent—Ah, good morning. Mr. Talk ad-to-death. I've called to see you about insuring you in my company. I want to—

Mr. Talk-to-death—Oh, go away! I don't want any insurance. I'm already—

"But, sir, you don't understand. This—"

"No, I tell you! I've been nearly talked into my grave by insurance agents, and—"

"Aha, now we're talking business! That's just why you ought to take a policy in my company."

"What is your company?"

"Why, it insures you against being talked to death by insurance agents!" —Boston Traveller.

Balfour Will Be Returned.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—It is reported that James Spencer Balfour has been turned over by the Argentine police inspector who went to Buenos Ayres with the papers for his extradition.

It is understood that the inspector will immediately leave for England with his prisoner.

Statistics show that mild winters are much more conducive to health than severe ones.

AN OLD PRESCRIPTION.

On This Particular Occasion It Failed to Do Its Work.

The crowd had gathered about a horse and buggy in the middle of the street. The horse had balked.

"A string around his ear," said one of the bystanders. "It gives him something else to think of. I never knew it to fail."

A string was produced and wound tightly round one of the animal's ears. It had no effect.

"Blindfold him," suggested another. A bandage was tied over his eyes and an effort made to start him.

Same result. "Back him," said the exasperated owner. "I tried that."

"Try him with a piece of corn."

The ear of corn held to move the obstinate horse.

"I'll see if I can't get him out of the animal."

He took a whiff and sniffed the beast with it till he was nearly sufficed to have him arrested.

Then he kicked him with a stick. All in vain.

Finally a horse-drawn carriage and gentleman forced his way through the crowd and said:

"I have seen a lot of merry bally horses started by building a fire under them. Can you get some straw or shavings?"

A boy was sent to a neighboring furniture store for some shavings. He came back promptly with a huge armful. It was placed on the ground under the horse and a lighted match touched it to it.

As the first fire broke from it and the smoke began to curl about his legs the horse went a little. He turned his head, took a calm survey of the situation, and when the combustible stuff burst into a big blaze he moved forward about six feet, in full possession of his faculties and without any unnecessary haste, and stopped again.

And the elegant buggy was damaged $25 worth by the flames before it occurred to anybody to scatter the blazing stuff.

And then an old colored man in a faded suit of secondhand clothes and a hat with half the brim gone went out and spoke kindly to the high spirited animal, rubbed his nose, patted him on the neck, climbed into the damaged buggy and said, "Git along, sonny."

And the horse moved off at a brisk trot, with head high in the air.—Chicago Tribune.

Wanted a Good Foot.

Models are an important part of a sculptor's need. I doubt whether in this particular we differ from our Greek predecessors, for we read of choice prostitutes, such as Peacocks, given by Phidias to his models, showing how much he valued them, presumably because it was as difficult then as now to get good ones.

To be a model is a business of itself, and when we remember the number of art schools there are, even in London alone, and the many artists who are entirely dependent upon them, it may be realized what a large body they must be.

The men are mostly Italians, chiefly, I am told, from the neighborhood of Naples. The women are, as a rule, English and have often sat for babies. To find a well formed foot is almost an impossibility among the best of them, owing to the long cramping in boots, but a friend once told me that he had in fact the foot of an Italian woman that was well formed and of a Greek type.

The foot is a very important part of the body, and it is well worth the trouble to get a good one. I have seen many models who have had to be replaced because their feet were not good enough.
